

BMW 2 Series 220d [190] xDrive M Sport 2dr Step Auto | Mar 2016

*** 4 WHEEL DRIVE/ HIGH SPEC***

Based on the sensible 1 Series hatchback, the 2 Series Coupe is the stylish sporting sibling that wraps four-seater capability in a sleek body as with this BMW 220d xDrive M Sport Coupe version. A few years on from its introduction, the model is getting a gentle reworking that includes LED headlights, revised front air intakes, optional LED fog lights, and a new version of the famous kidney grille. Importantly, the interior has been heavily revised too, with a new dashboard that's tuned towards the driver, a new instrument binnacle, higher quality materials (especially on all those touch point such as air vents and window switches) and the latest version of BMW's iDrive.

The 2.0-litre diesel engine produces a healthy 400Nm of torque, making the 0-62mph sprint pass by in just 6.9 seconds. Performance isn't at the expense of economy, with official figures promising an impressive 60.1mpg. Particularly enthusiastic driving will hurt economy, but on a rather brisk test the car still returned around 45mpg. Real-world returns of 50+mpg should be easy. The engine is mated to a superb eight-speed automatic gearbox from ZF, a silky-smooth system that never seems to leave you in need of a different gear. Steering-wheel mounted paddles allow for quick manual changes when required. Four-wheel drive adds a degree of stability and certainty in tricky conditions. It's biased towards the rear under normal circumstances, but shifts power to the front when there's a hint of traction breaking away. BMW still retains the reputation of producing cars that are more engaging to drive than the competition, and there's no doubting that this is a more enjoyable steer than the Audi TT. With little other competition, the 2 Series is the go-to car in the class for those wanting driving thrills.

This particular car has had only 2 owners, the last one a lady who had it from October 2017. It is in simply stunning condition both inside and out and upon inspection it will become clear that this particular example has been clearly cherished. The car has a service history with BMW and we will be carrying out a
